Design Concept & Process:

This quilt is based on the design of Feather Study #30, which I designed, hand dyed, and pieced in 2007. I started with a digital photo of the unquilted top of Feather Study #30. I changed the shape from rectangular to square, altered the colors and then digitally painted most parts of the image. The digital file was printed on cotton fabric by Spoonflower. I quilted it with many different colors of acrylic and polyester thread. It took as long to quilt this smaller version of my design as it did the larger version. I designed special fabric for the binding and had it printed at the same time as the quilt top. The back of the quilt is a one-of-a-kind, dye painted fabric.

When I made the label for this quilt, I forgot that I had already made a quilt called Feather Study #36 and didn't discover my mistake until the label was on and the quilt was finished. My solution was to call this one 36a.
